

VISIONS of our communities' futures

Since its inception in 1997, RDÉE Canada, the only national economic development network for Francophone and Acadian communities (FACs), has optimized the economic potential of these communities with the help of 12 provincial and territorial organizations.

The network helps communities create Vision Plans—economic development plans that allow them to express their vision of the future with regard to industrial, commercial, residential and tourism projects. These plans, based on community consultation processes, allow municipalities to envision what they could become if they focussed on their potential in all sectors.

RDÉE Canada, architect of FAC economic development, needs your support to continue its mission—to actively contribute to Canadian economic growth.
